Jet Spews Flames Over Wide Tract; 7 Homes Destroyed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)— Five persons died when an F105 fighter plane plunged into a new housing development where housewives were hanging out laundry and children were playing on a sunny afternoon.

Moments a f t e r takeoff
Wednesday from nearby Nellis Air Force Base, the jet lost altitude, wavered and then knifed into the tract. The plane exploded, spewing flames over a wide area. Seven dwellings were destroyed. 800 Children In School Five blocks away, 800 children were attending classes in Lincoln Elementary School. They were not endangered.

The plane plummeted to earth at the far edge of the development, just short of a cleared area the pilot was fighting to reach. The dead:

favorably on the general over-all appearance of our fair city.

Statements range from "you have a pretty town" to "my, what a beautiful city you have."

There are a few blemishes, however. Most cities and towns have them, but that isn't to concede that they can't be eliminated or improved upon.

Most of the detractions, we're sorry to say, are in the downtown section-right where the city of Salem ought to be put-ting its best foot forward. Most merchants and owners of mercantile buildings have maintained a continuing up-to-date program, but others lack enough personal

Many a visitor to Salem has commented and civic pride to carry out anything resembling modernization. So unattractive are a couple buildings, that they ought to be torn down, and a bit of legal persuasion by fire and health officials just might do the trick.

> Salem is on the move in many avenues of progress but that attractive well-cared-for appearance can not be achieved on an over-all community-wide basis unless everyone cooperates whether he be an average citizen, a businessman, a property owner, an industralist, a civic leader, or any combination of these.

In a perfect republic, the people put re-sponsibility for exercising the sovereign power into the hands of elected officials and leave it there.

It follows that the elected officials, subject to recall by the electorate, will be-come highly proficient in performance of their duties if they continue to perform the duties of government long enough. U.S. Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., 85-

Decades of experience in legislating had made him a master of that precise art. The seniority that put him at the top of the core committee of the House, which has unique responsibility for originating appropriation bills was backed by knowledge and skill that began to push him to the top of his chosen profession while he was still a young man.

By Truman Twill

The auto age will not reach its peak until something more systematic has been done about car rentals.

This is one of those fixations a fellow can't get rid of. I do not believe it makes sense for all people to own cars, though it is hard to think of cases in which people have no need of a car.

The car rental businesses that have sprung up all over the country have come to grips with this in a small way. But it is no secret their best customers rent their cars because they can deduct what it costs from taxable income - as a business expense.

This is fine for people in business who can deduct auto expenses. But it is not he tax-deductible rental car that has crysallized my fixation. Like dozens of other things, that is one by product of our daffy tax legislation.

MY FIXATION is about cars for people like me, who must pay for their transpor tation through the nose-for tens of millions of people like me who don't have a tax gimmick. The statistics? About 94 million of us drive cars. All but a few hundred thousand own them.

I contend that auto manufacturers, together with garoline and tire companies, could arrange for millions of us to rent sheaper than we can own, counting in what could be saved by mass purchase of surance, central repair depots, systematic maintenance and closer control of operator ability.

I contend this would enable auto users to move up and down the scale of automotive cost at will, instead of being locked into place by ownership. There are times when it would be entirely satisfactory to be driving at the rock-bottom rate, other times when it would be nice to gussie up with something special, like showing up at a class reunion in a

There are other times when it would make good sense to have no car at all also times when a family needs an extra car or two - even times when it would be nice to shuck off a car instead of keeping money tied up. Flexibility is what

IT CHEERS ME to read that one of the biggest oil companies is getting into the car rental business, using filling stations handling its product as customer

It reassures me to read in this connection that car rental people are looking with lively interest at little people like me, who long since lost the thrill of owning and now regard cars as transporta-tion, yet would like to switch around occasionally instead of clinging to the same clunker until its last death rattle.

What I'm getting at-let's level - is this. If I rented instead of owned, I'd rent a convertible for Maytime, a red one. You know, for kicks. The rest of the year, who gives a whoop? Four wheels are four "Fight? What Fight?"

'Creative' Rail Mediators

Do you know how to "pool Ciaboses" or move a "house out of an interdivisional run' or "get the last engine out of the yard," or count a crew on a 'self-propelled maor chine," what a "drawbar" is? No?

MORE BITTER arguments two of President Johnson's good friends

Victor Riesel when he tele-noned them on the night of April 10 and said: "We've got to settle us a railroad crisis and I need some creative mediation, so get down here by 9 oclock tomorrow morning." Those creative mediators. Theodre Kheel and Dr. George Tavlor are geniuses not so much because they kept the nation from slowly being strangled by a national rail strike, but because they learned in five days what it took others five decades to learn.

They're still at it, but few realize the difficulties of the they encountered—a "patois" going back to the days when Indians shot burning arrows into wooden freight cars.

TO UNDERSTAND the enormity of learning the jargon of a 100-year-old industry in less than 100 hours, is to understand the real issues in a rail crisis which is still with us. Few do understand, so here goes.

Early in the negotiations Kheel and Taylor found the railroad management people arguing with the union chiefs over something called "pooling the caboose." After a while the newcomers understood that in days of old the caboose was a "man's home away from home. . . . He had curtains on the windows, his wife's picture on the wall, his own coffee pot on a hot stove, his own cups, perhaps a whiskey bottle, also his foul weather gear and his overalls. . . . It was his home away from home."

The mediators did some homework. They learned that the trainman or conductor'scaboose on a layover was truly his "castle." When the train came to the end of a certain point, it had to stop, unhook its caboose, shunt it to a siding and hitch up anther caboose "belonging" to another trainman or conductor. Practically each one of them had his own caboose. This took considerable time and, therefore, considerable money.

SO THE RAILROADS went to the unions and said, pool the cabooses! Leave the end car attached to the train so it can be used by many trainmen in-stead of just one or two. But the men complained that since they had their personal effects in the car, giving it up would be like letting some stranger live in your own home.

So the roads said they'd give a penny a mile in lieu of private occupancy of the caboose.

Some workers on some lines accepted the deal. The caboses were pooled.

But last month the unions demanded payment for lodging during time spent away from home on layovers. When the roads retorted that they already were paying a penny a mile, the Brotherhoods argued that this was only to compensate for the sacrifice of a home away from home and not forlodging.

During the White House con ferences both sides agreed to settle, though they did not settle this problem. It will have to be done on a railroad-by-railroad basis.

came over "inter - divisional runs." After an average of 123 miles the trains stop, a crew gets off and a new crew gets

The railroads asked why the average couldn't be 146 miles. The unions replied that many crew members had homes at or near the end of the 123-mile point and the men would have to be recompensed for losses incurred in moving or in the sale of the old home and purchase of the new one - at the 146mile point.

The roads said, fine, but who will appraise the value of the house the men must vacate? This argument was not settled either. The mediators now are working on an acceptable appraisal system.

Issue Defined

By DAVID LAWRENCE Citizens may begin to wonder whether there is any protection for the civil rights of those employers who undergo severe financial losses b e c ause of the arbitrary acts of persons engaging in wild cat strikes or valkouts. Within the last few days, unions have David Lawrence had to call on their members to obey a federal court order which prohibits wildcat strikes that have arisen in some railroads over the terms of an arbitration award. Also, there are wildcat strikes on construction projects in different parts of the country.

In the nation's capital a group of printers caused suspension for four days of the normal editions of the Washington Evening and Sunday Star, resulting in losses not only to the owners but to the merchants of the city who depend on a large extent upon day-o-day advertising for

The City of Washington doesn't have a mayor, and has to rely upon the president and the Congress for laws to protect the citizens. Neither President Johnson nor members of Congress even denounced the wildoat strike.

THE CONSTITUTION forbids Congress to pass any law that the press, but it does not pre-vent a labor-union organization or its members from accomplishing virtually the same pur-

The fact that a walkout occurs without the authorization of the national union and in violaion of a contract, as happened in the case of the Washington printers, and that an ef-fort publicly was made by the union officers to persuade the workers to go back to their jobs does not erase the loss.

Is there a remedy under existing laws? The right to strike is recognized in the National Labor Relations Act. Redress, however, can be sought when individuals conspire with each other and engage in a walkout. Sec. 301 reads as follows:

"Suits for violation of contracts between an employer and a labor organization representing employes in an industry affecting commerce as de-fined in this act, or between any such labor organizations, may be brought in any District Court of the United States having jurisdiction of the parties, without respect to the amount gard to the citizenship of the

"For the purposes of this section, in determining whether any person is acting as an 'agent' of another person so as to make such other person responsible for his acts, the question of whether the specific acts performed were actually authorized or subsequently rati-fied shall not be controlling."

IN THE WASHINGTON case. the walkout by the employes was not sanctioned by he national union. The statute makes it possible to hold the labor union itself responsible neverthe-less for breaches of contract, What happened in the current instance was that the foreman of the composing room dis-charged a shop chairman of the printers union for allegedly vio-lating the rules of the company.

The contract between all Washington newspapers and the printers union provides that such disputes must be submitted to arbitration. The union argued that the employe should first be reinstated without prejudice, and it was the publisher's refusal to do this which led other employes to walk off the

When the strike was finally settled, with the issues to be submitted to arbitraion if necessary, he shop chairman was reinstated as demanded by the strikers but with the loss to him of one day's wages.

Who will pay the financial losses the employer incurred?
This question has arisen many times before, and customarily when a strike is settled there is a tendency to let bygones be bygones. This has led to the impression that wildcat strikes never are going to be punished, and that hence no risk is taken by those who start them. Whatever penalty there is thus re-mains on the side of the employer whose property is dam-

ONE REASON is that the employers do not relish a continuance of the dispute and are usu-ally anxious to settle the matter. The proposal, for instance, by federal government mediators submitted to both the union and the newspaper pub-lisher contained the following paragraph, which was subse-quently accepted by both sides: "That, in the interest of promoting harmonious relations, neither the company nor the union take any punitive or legal action against any individual or against each other in relation to this controversy."

The civil rights controversy has properly emphasized indi-vidual rights where there are discriminations due to race or color or religion. There are many other forms of discrimination which have not yet been covered by law. One of them appears to be that exercise of acy of individual citizens to tie up a plant or a factory or a railroad without themselves undergoing any substantial penalty.

Views of Our Readers

Against Annexation

The question asked by the Inquiring Reporter Saturday concerning annexation of Perry Township by the city of Salem was very interesting, to say the least. However, I believe that if the question were put to more people that reside in the township rather than in the city proper the consensus would be much different.

Many of us who live outside the city limits do so by choice, feeling that the city has little to offer in contrast to the benefits of suburban living. We have good roads, and adequate, flexible zoning laws which protect us to some degree. Water and sewage installations are under county supervision and if installed properly are no problem.

I am inclined to agree with Mrs. Corbett in saying that we have a good community and our needs are adequately supplied. Those of us who make our living in Salem pay the city income tax, even though we have no representation on City Council. Annexation would be a high price to pay for that privilege, however, for I am sure that it would be many years before the city of Salem could provide services to the township that would be more attractive than those we now have.

M. W. Sechler, RD 1, Salem.

DO YOUR FASHIONS MATCH the mood of your fragrance? This spring and summer they can if you so desire. These designs by Wilroy have been created to interpret the light floral theme of tulip fragrance by Helena Rubenstein (inset). A-line dress (left) features abstract tulip leaves in a panel of green from neckline to hem. Dress is a soft pink. Open Tulip coiffure completes the theme. A-line shift of imported linen in navy and white shows large tulips that seem to grow out of the hemline (center). Model is wearing the new Tulip Bud hairdo. Scooped neck with self ruffles is a princess style sheath (right) carries out the demure feminine aspects of tulip fragrance. In a new shade of pink, the dress skims the waistline and gently flares from the hips.

County Fair Plans

LISBON - Richard Stockman speed manager of the Columbi-and County Fair, told other members of the board at a meeting last night at the fairground that he has a record 78 colts entered in the three days of harness racing at the county fair Aug. 26-30.

Harness racing will be held Wednesday, Friday and Saturday afternoons. The old-fashion theme will be used for this years 119th annual fair. The fair board has asked 13 county high school bands to perform Sunday afternoon and has offered them $50 each for their services. Lisbon and East Palestine High School Bands have accepted dates for Thursday and Saturday, respectively.

Friday will be West Virginia

Day and Saturday Pennsylvania Day. The secretary, Mrs. Velma Cope, was authorized to invite the governors of both states to appear at the fair. President Ben Weingart pre-

BRIGHTNESS by Elizabeth Jenkins. This is the story of two families. The son of one family has been raised to accept responsibility and to use his best judgment. The son of the other family has been given every material thing he wanted, but no training. Suddenly the one boy is killed in an automobile accident while riding with the other. The author takes us on into the reactions and the changes wrought in the two families by this event. Miss Jenkins is much admired for her biography of Queen Elizabeth, she has also written other good TRADE WIND by M. M. Kaye. Zanzibar of a hundred years ago makes an exciting background for this story of romance and adventure. As Hero Hollis is on the way to Zanzibar she is washed off the deck of the ship and is rescued by a renegade British slave trader. He delivers her safely to her uncle, but there is a continuing contact among these people so opposite in every way. A chol-era epidemic finally reduces all of them to a common denominator where their lives can begin again on a different plane, MARTHA, ERIC AND GEORGE by Margery Sharp. A continuation of "Martha in Paris", this tells the story of Martha's son whom she left on the doorstep of Eric's apartment in Paris when he was only a few days old.

Tarleton Is Salem Threat In Mile Run

By MARK W. MILLER News Sports Editor

With 41 schools entered, the Class AA district track and field meet at Reilly Stadium here Friday will be the largest held since the late 1940s.

Late entries include Brookfield, Badger, East Palestine, Youngstown Ursuline and Jackson-Milton. A total of 630 athletes is set to compete in the day-long classic.

The first four boys finishing in the finals of the field events and races will qualify for the state meet at Columbus, May

Salem's strength lies in the distance races, both relays and the two weight events.

VETERAN JOHN TARLETON has the second fastest mile in the district this season of 4:31. Oscar Brown of Youngstown Rayen, who has been timed in 4:28.7, edged the Quakers' star in the Rayen relays earlier in the campaign.

In the race will be several milers who have been clocked in 4:40 or under at one time or another. The record for the distance event is 4:27.1 set by George Tracy of Warren Harding in 1960.

One of the oldest records which could be broken is the mile relay set by Magaillen in Sec.
